Side Notes: This is one of the lullabies I remember singing with my mom as a child. The melody always felt comforting to me and it was catchy so it would get stuck in my head all of the time. The song starts out saying "I see my mother kneeling..."

I think that the example we set for our children, even when we don't think they are noticing what we are doing or saying, often is the most impactful thing we teach our kids. Modeling attitudes and behaviors towards others teaches more than we realize to our kids. Whether it is praying, being kind to someone, or serving others, those examples of love have a lasting impact. I know I am not always the best example, but this song and its message definitely have caused me to pause on more than one occasion and recognize how my example impacts my children.

Love Is Spoken Here

Piano & Violin Duet

Words and Music
Janice Kapp Perry
Arr. JASON TONIOLI

Arrangement © 2026 Tonioli Music, LLC
Used by permission
© 1980 Janice Kapp Perry