Side Notes: This song is a type of lullaby with both a child and a parent. One of the unique things I've loved with Janice Kapp Perry tunes is that there is often a duet between children and an adult role model. This song's lyrics start as a conversation between a child and God in such an innocent way. The second verse is the response from the parent or adult that reassures the child that God does answer prayers and cares about each one of his children. On the third verse of this song, I decided to make the arrangement so if someone were singing to this, they could sing the duet part together.
