

Side Notes: This song starts out very simply and easy to play and then progresses into some more difficult rhythms on the second page. As I was writing this song, I was picturing a sunset and how calm and peaceful it usually is and then as the sun ends up setting, we usually lose the peacefulness and move along about the rest of the evening. As you get into the second page, be sure not to rush the notes and feel like you have to stay at tempo. As you get further into the song, be sure to pull back the tempo and speed up and slow down as you feel it appropriate.
