Side Notes: This was a lost song that I originally started in 2021. The file was labeled 8-28-2022, and while I had sketched out about two pages of ideas, it was never finished. It was likely something that began as a few melody ideas and was added to over several days but nothing concrete.

When I came back to it in 2026, a clear image came to mind, someone sitting outside, looking up into a bright, cloud-filled sky, thinking about the possibilities and consequences that follow a big decision.

We've all had moments where we wish and hope for something, not knowing what the outcome will be or how the story will unfold. As you play this song, picture yourself, or someone you love, in a quiet moment of prayer or reflection, looking up to the sky, thinking about, wishing and wondering what will come next.

A Wish
