Side Notes: This tune was originally recorded in 2010 and included on my album "Christmas Gift". Sixteen years later, while going through unfinished song files, I found the partially written version of the song, not even realizing we had recorded an improvised version at the studio in 2010. When I found the unfinished sketch I had made in 2010, I worked for a few hours editing and writing an ending to the sheet music. It still has many parts of the original improvised version but now includes a newer, more experienced style. It's interesting how songs often come together in the moment you need them and then you forget about them, only to have the same song idea come back to you when you need it.
